

Pork Butt Weekly Write-Up

Intro

As I sit here, drinking my morning coffee, I started to go over the games I watched this week (I always watch the games of our favorite teams) and there were some good games, some oh for fuck's sake, and some were boring. The G-Men (aka big blue) steamed rolled (or did a Philly Steamer?) the Eagles in an impressive game (Giants front four is impressive). Seattle has the most boring pass game, but the league's highest WR (yardage wise) as they continued to win, beating the Jags in Florida. The Raiders beat the Titans so badly, the Titans fired their head coach. Over in Green Bay, the Packers (FTP) struggled with a hapless Bengals team, but did get the win. On Monday night the Bears kept their winning ways going as a last-minute field goal proved just enough to beat the Commanders. Cowboys could not figure out how to beat the Panthers as they lost in Carolina.

Game of the Week

Chaka v Jake

Good times were had at the tailgater before kickoff. Jake took the win, currently securing himself in the three seed. Chaka's loss dropped him in the ranks, but he still has a chance. I thought the league coin would be correct in predicting Chaka the winner, but Jake defied the RSO prediction (seven-point favorite), and the league coin (it chose Chaka) to finish this game with a twenty-one-point win.

Snore of the Week

Mike v Dave

You might ask why Mike is tossed into this category, which is easy to answer. He played Dave this week. Mike scored first, second, whenever, and post-game. Dave's offense was in shambles and did not compete as Mike took the win by twenty-five points.

Matchups

Andrew v Brandon

Both teams balled out (or is it cock out?) as they went to battle. Andrew's bi-polar offense (seriously, no one knows who is showing up each week) decided to have a productive week as he finished with 125 points. Brandon scored here and there, but did compete, just not enough glory in the end as he fell 125-108. The loss put Brandon's playoff hopes in jeopardy.

Rich v Jason

Rich was hoping to keep their winning streak going, The mountain was tall to climb as he faced the top offense in the league. Jason stumbled this week as his team scored the lowest amount this year, but it was still enough to secure the win 138-83. Rich had a chance early in this game to take a lead but did not capitalize.

Sky v Dino

This was a blowout, not gonna lie. Dino scored early but went limp the last half of the game (problem with guys his age, yeah?). Seeing the opportunity, Sky popped the clutch, hit the gas, and decimated his opponent as he took the win 173-107 and held onto the second seed.

Next Week

Brandon v Dave

Both teams here need a win, however, only one will be successful. RSO has this a tie 105-105. I do not believe this, I think Brandon will eke out the win and hand Dave his fifth loss of the season.

Sky v Jake

Winner of this game will securely hold second place, and the loser could fall as low as fourth. I think Jake's offense does just enough to upset Sky (RSO has him a twelve-point favorite) and move up to second.

Mike v Andrew

Andrew is coming off an upset last week, and Mike is in the playoff hunt. Andrew's offense is too streaky to be dependable to be considered a playoff threat this early. Streaky offense shows up this week and falls short. Mike takes the win in this matchup. Oh, and RSO believes me, they have Mike favored by fifty-four.

Jason v Chaka

Jason has not won a week seven matchup (seriously, he is 0-4 in week seven) but I do believe that offense of his breaks the trend and he gets his first week seven-win handing Chaka a loss.

Rich v Dino

Two teams flirting with the bottom of the league will give us a potential snore for the week. Each team has a decent offense, on paper. However, team records show that a win is crucial if either of these want to stay in the playoff hunt.

Playoffs

1. Jason: Proud Mary keep on rolling. That is the song coming out of this camp. Another week, another win, another week at the one spot.
2. Sky: second place looks feasible, as of now a crucial matchup this week can send this team sideways.
3. Jake: Looking to move up one spot to number two he needs to upset Sky this week. Put the best lineup forward, burn some Sage, whatever it is you do for luck, this is the time to do it.
4. Mike: After getting the win last week, he has moved up to the fourth seed. The pack is hunting, so he needs to keep winning to keep the wolves at bay.
5. Chaka: Losing this week dropped him one spot and still in the playoff hunt. This week's matchup will not be easy, but it can be done. A loss here might drop him out of the top six.
6. Rich: He made a crucial loss this week and dropped one spot in the top six. On the cusp of the playoff hunt, it is win now and win often if he wants to stay here.

Mish Picks

CORRECT	INCORRECT
16	9

I had a couple of upsets last week (thanks Brandon and Chaka) as my record is still above .500, but the incorrect picks are ticking up. Seriously, fellas, enough with upsets.

Final Handy

We are entering the halfway point of our season; the league standings are starting to take shape as teams are fighting for the sixth and final playoff spot. Some teams (Andrew, Dave, Brandon, Rich, Dino) are in a five-way battle for those six seeds. Our league still has one undefeated, Jason, who easily has the strongest offense in the league and is riding a six-game winning streak. We have some good matchups this week, and I am looking forward to following those, other games, meh, I will pay attention, but not enough to know what is going on. With that, may your beer be cold, Karma finds you today, and fuck your team....'mish out.
